Organized Session Proposals

Proposals for organized sessions are also due by January 16, 2017. Earlier communication with the Chair of the Program Committee conference2017@sioe.org is encouraged to facilitate coordination of sessions. For organized sessions, the proposal should include (1) the name of the author(s), (2) paper titles and abstract, and (3) email contacts for each paper.

The session proposal should also describe the organizing theme for the coordinated session. The person submitting the session will be considered the session organizer (though they may or may not present a paper). If a discussant is desired, that should be included in the description of the proposed session. If papers are completed at the time of the proposal submission, it is advantageous to include them as an attachment with the proposal. If the papers are not yet available, extended abstracts are strongly recommended. The Session Proposal should be sent as a Microsoft Word document named with the name of the person submitting the session. The joint papers should be included as a PDF file named with the name of the presenting author. The package should be sent as an attachment to an email to: conference2017@sioe.org.

Papers included in session proposals should not be submitted as single paper in the online submission system.

SIOE Mission Statement

The Society for Institutional and Organizational Economics (formerly known as the International Society for the New Institutional Economics) promotes rigorous theoretical and empirical investigation of the nature, behavior, and governance of organizations and institutions using approaches drawn from economics, organization theory, law, political science, and other social sciences. The Society makes a special effort to encourage participation from scholars from around the world.

History of SIOE

SIOE was originally founded as The International Society for New Institutional Economics in 1997, shortly after the first ISNIE conference in September 1997 at Washington University in Saint Louis. The purpose of the Society was to promote rigorous theoretical and empirical investigation of the institutions of social, political and commercial life using approaches drawn from economics, organization theory, law, political science, and other social sciences. The Society was from its inception international in outlook and membership. Among its founders and early presidents were three winners of the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences: Ronald Coase, Douglass North, and Oliver Williamson. Along with Lee Benham, John Drobak, Claude Ménard, and Mary Shirley, Alexandra Benham was instrumental in getting the Society up and running, and in that connection she prepared the ISNIE newsletter, which was published from 1998 to 2003 and the issues of which are archived here as a valuable resource for the history of our organization and the field.
